11 Dear Magistrate Judge van Keulen:

12 Pursuant to Your Honor's June 1, 2021 Order on Google's Administrative Motion to Seal
13 Courtroom for June 2, 2021 Discovery Hearing (Dkt. 182, 183), and August 13, 2021 Order
14 Extending Time for Submitting Proposed Redactions to Transcript of June 2, 2021 Hearing (Dkt.
15 246), Plaintiffs and Google LLC ("Google") jointly submit this statement regarding sealing portions
16 of the June 2, 2021 hearing transcript.

Google respectfully seeks to seal the following portions of the June 2, 2021 Hearing Transcript (“Transcript”), which contain Google’s confidential and proprietary information regarding highly sensitive features of Google’s internal systems and operations that Google does not share publicly, including: the various types of Google’s internal policies, internal data structures, identifiers/cookies and their proprietary functions. This Court has previously sealed the same or substantively similar information, including in Dkt. Nos. 143, 152, 160, 172, 174, 183, 190, 197, 226. This information is highly confidential and should be protected.

This Administrative Motion pertains to the following information contained in the Transcript:

Document	Portions to be Filed Under Seal	Party Claiming Confidentiality
June 2, 2021 Hearing Transcript	Portions Highlighted in Yellow at 13:2, 13:8, 13:11, 32:18-20, 34:10, 34:23-25, 36:23-37:3, 37:8-11, 37:15-16, 37:19-20, 37:22-24, 38:3-5, 46:3-11, 46:14-15, 46:17-23, 46:25, 47:1, 70:20, 70:24, 71:2.	Google

The parties conferred on the proposed redactions to the Transcript. Plaintiffs believe there is no basis for any redactions, but they nonetheless do not oppose Google’s motion to seal.

I. LEGAL STANDARD

The common law right of public access to judicial records in a civil case is not a constitutional right and it is “not absolute.” Nixon v. Warner Communications, Inc., 435 U.S. 589, 598 (1978) (noting that the “right to inspect and copy judicial records is not absolute” and that “courts have refused to permit their files to serve as reservoirs of . . . sources of business information that might harm a litigant’s competitive standing”). The right to access is further diminished where, as here, a party seeks to prevent the disclosure of information discussed during a hearing on a non-dispositive discovery motion; rather than the more stringent “compelling reasons” standard, a party seeking to seal materials in these circumstances must make only a “particularized showing” of “good cause.” Kamakana v. City & County of Honolulu, 447 F.3d 1172, 1178–80 (9th Cir. 2006). A “strong presumption of access” does not apply to sealed discovery documents attached to non-dispositive motions; a “party seeking disclosure must present sufficiently compelling reasons why the sealed

1 discovery document should be released.” Phillips ex rel. Estates of Byrd v. General Motors Corp., 307
 2 F.3d 1206, 1213 (9th Cir. 2002). Sealing is appropriate when the information at issue constitutes
 3 “competitively sensitive information,” such as “confidential research, development, or commercial
 4 information.” France Telecom S.A. v. Marvell Semiconductor Inc., 2014 WL 4965995, at *4 (N.D.
 5 Cal. Oct. 3, 2014); see also Phillips v. Gen. Motors Corp., 307 F.3d 1206, 1211 (9th Cir. 2002)
 6 (acknowledging courts’ “broad latitude” to “prevent disclosure of materials for many types of 7 information, including, but not limited to, trade secrets or other confidential research, development, or 8 commercial information”).

9 II. THE ABOVE IDENTIFIED MATERIALS EASILY MEET THE “GOOD CAUSE” 10 STANDARD AND SHOULD ALL BE SEALED

11 Although the materials that Google seeks to seal here easily meet the higher “compelling
 12 reasons” standard, the Court need only consider whether these materials meet the lower “good cause”
 13 standard. Courts have repeatedly found it appropriate to seal documents that contain “business
 14 information that might harm a litigant’s competitive standing.” Nixon, 435 U.S. at 589-99. Good 15 cause to seal is shown when a party seeks to seal materials that “contain[ ] confidential information
 16 about the operation of [the party’s] products and that public disclosure could harm [the party] by 17 disclosing confidential technical information.” Digital Reg. of Texas, LLC v. Adobe Sys., Inc., 2014
 18 WL 6986068, at *1 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 10, 2014). Materials that could harm a litigant’s competitive
 19 standing may be sealed even under the “compelling reasons” standard. See e.g., Icon-IP Pty Ltd. v.
 20 Specialized Bicycle Components, Inc., 2015 WL 984121, at *2 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 4, 2015) (information 21 “is appropriately sealable under the ‘compelling reasons’ standard where that information could be 22 used to the company’s competitive disadvantage”) (citation omitted).

23 Here, the Transcript comprises confidential information regarding highly sensitive features of 24 Google’s internal systems and operations that Google does not share publicly. Specifically, this
 25 information provides details related to the various types of Google’s internal policies, internal data
 26 structures, internal identifiers/cookies and their proprietary functions. Such information reveals 27 Google’s internal strategies, system designs, and business practices for operating and maintaining 28 many of its important services while complying with legal and privacy obligations.

1 Public disclosure of the above-listed information would harm Google’s competitive standing it
2 has earned through years of innovation and careful deliberation, by revealing sensitive aspects of
3 Google’s proprietary systems, strategies, designs, and practices to Google’s competitors. That alone is 4 a proper basis to seal such information. See, e.g., Free Range Content, Inc. v. Google Inc., No. 14-cv-
5 02329-BLF, Dkt. No. 192, at 3-9 (N.D. Cal. May 3, 2017) (granting Google’s motion to seal certain 6 sensitive business information related to Google’s processes and policies to ensure the integrity and 7 security of a different advertising system); Huawei Techs., Co. v. Samsung Elecs. Co., No. 3:16-cv-
8 02787-WHO, Dkt. No. 446, at 19 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 30, 2019) (sealing confidential sales data because 9 “disclosure would harm their competitive standing by giving competitors insight they do not have”);
10 Trotsky v. Travelers Indem. Co., 2013 WL 12116153, at *8 (W.D. Wash. May 8, 2013) (granting 11 motion to seal as to “internal research results that disclose statistical coding that is not publically 12 available”).

13 Moreover, if publicly disclosed, malicious actors may use such information to seek to 14 compromise Google’s internal data structures and internal identifier systems. Google would be 15 placed at an increased risk of cyber security threats, and data related to browsing of users could 16 similarly be at risk. See, e.g., In re Google Inc. Gmail Litig., 2013 WL 5366963, at *3 (N.D. Cal.
17 Sept. 25, 2013) (sealing “material concern[ing] how users’ interactions with the Gmail system affects 18 how messages are transmitted” because if made public, it “could lead to a breach in the security of the 19 Gmail system”). The security threat is an additional reason for this Court to seal the identified
20 information. The information Google seeks to redact, including internal policies, internal data
21 structures, internal identifiers/cookies and their functionalities, is the minimal amount of information
22 needed to protect its internal systems and operations from being exposed to not only its competitors
23 but also to nefarious actors who may improperly seek access to and disrupt these systems and 24 operations. The “good cause” rather than the “compelling reasons” standard should apply but under 25 either standard, Google’s sealing request is warranted.

26 III. CONCLUSION

27 For the foregoing reasons, Google respectfully requests that the Court seal the identified portions 28 of the Transcript.

Respectfully,

QUINN EMANUEL URQUHART &
SULLIVAN, LLP
